

Holiday Cards Now on Sale!

Interact’s beautiful, high quality, holiday cards are a great way to support the talented visual artists at Interact. This year’s collection features works by Bill Borden, Donovan Durham, John Pieper and Mary McCarthy.

Imagine Peace Bill Borden’s original drawings have the impact and humor of the best graphic design works. His signature style has earned him commissions for greeting cards, theater programs and business logos for organizations across the Twin Cities. Bill is autistic and hearing impaired. In 2007, Bill’s work was featured in a remarkably successful solo show at Interact’s Inside Out Gallery.

A Magical Christmas Wonderland in Rome Donovan Durham is a self-taught artist who has drawn and painted since he was quite young. His paintings reflect a deeply soulful nature and often depict scenes of landscape imbued with spiritual symbolism. He is one of Interact’s most accomplished artists, receiving a Minnesota State Arts Board Grant in 2004 to complete a series of lithographs and monoprints featuring Motown greats.

Angelus Nova John Pieper casually sketched during his career as a scientist and theologian for over 20 years. 10 years ago he received a traumatic brain injury while working as a crisis intervention counselor. In 2004 John joined Interact, becoming more serious about his craft. His art operates at the crossroads of his former and current lives - at the intersection of art, science and religion. “Angelus Nova” is a messenger between the earthly and the spiritual worlds.

Angels Marie McCarthy is a painter whose works often explore themes of spirituality and healing. As an artist with Multiple Sclerosis, Marie is active in her community and her church. Her work was recently added to the permanent collection at Westminster Presbyterian Church of Minneapolis. She is interested in conveying stories through her artwork, and says, “I am inspired by nature and all God’s creations.”
